MAUINEWS

[Associated Press by Federal Wireless] WAILUKU, Maul, Nov. 27.-Thanksgiving on Maul was observed appropriately in all the central Maul churches. On Sunday morning at the Makawao church Rev. A. Craig Bowdish preached a very strong and most helpful Thanksgiving sermon, which was listened to most attentively by a large audience. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Banana paims and papaia trees were placed about the pulpit platform in most artistic style. In between these many stalks of cane tassels were used, while an enormous bank of fruit was piled high. The music of the day was especially appropriate and beautiful. At the Kahului church Rev. Howard Harris preached to a large congregation and all who attended the service were greatly helped by what he said on the Thanksgiving theme. Special music was rendered for the occasion.

At Wailuku Union church cane-tassels were most effectively used about and behind the pulpit. The church of the Good Shepherd united with the congregation in a union service. Rev. J. Charles Villiers read the Thanksgiving proclamation and also the Scripture lessons, Rev. Rowland B. Dodge, the minister of Union church, held the attention of the large audience upon the theme "Thankfulness a Christian Duty." The choir sang ies, the church solois rendered Copta's "I Will Extol Thee."

A large number of worshippers arrived early for the organ recital by Miss Hoffmann.

On Thursday morning a union service/was held at the Church of the Good Shepherd. Rev. Mr. Dodge assisted by reading the scripture les-sons. Rev. Mr. Villiers preached a strong sermon upon disarmament and two beautiful Thanksgiving anthem were rendered by the large choir. A good sized audience was present from Walluku and Kahului for the service. The altar was decorated with beauti-

On Saturday night last week the ladies of the Walluku Catholic church gave their annual sale of fancy articles and bazaar at the Alexander house gymnasium. The sale began in the afternoon at 4 o'clock and the floor of the hall was literally crowded with boys and girls, with a sprinkling of older people. In the evening the sale was resumed at about 7 o'clock and there was a large number present again. Ice cream and cake were served from the gallery. Many beautiful articles were on sale and all were disposed of. Dancing was much enloyed during the latter part of the evening. The ladies cleared over $300.

Last Saturday evening at the Wil liam and Mary Alexander parsonage Miss Alona E. Whisler invited some 30 of her Maui friends to a candy pull. The first part of the evening was spent in games of various kinds, in which many a joke was played upon the unsurrection. the unsuspecting. When the candy pulling began in earnest there was a busy crowd of young people. The candy was good, and some wonderful colors and flavors were found on the table when the final array was made. erbet and cake were served before the party broke up. All pronounced the affair one of the jolliest of the Maui winter season.

On Wednesday afternoon at the invitation of Mesdames A. C. Warner and Enos Vincent, a large number of Walluku ladles met at the home of Mrs. Warner for a Pollyanna party. The affair was a novel one, and much enjoyed by all present. The sole duty of the guests was to be glad, always glad, and find something for which to be thankful. It is said by those attending that no more novel party was ever given by Maui ladies. Delicious refreshments were served before the afternoon was over.

Central Maui ministers gathered at the Kaahumanu church on Tuesday last in spite of the heavy downpour of rain. Some of the men came as far as from Lahaina and Ulupalakua to attend. The papers were shorter than usual, but of great interest to all present. After the session was over Rev. and Mrs. Kaumeheiwa, together with one or two helpers from the Kaabumana church, served a delicious pol luncheon in their dining room.

On Tuesday, December 1, the ladies at Union church will give sale and bazzar, the first for some ars. The proceeds of the affair are e used for a worthy object in con-lon with the church work in Kahului. A large number of articles have been prepared for the sale, and it is expected that Mani people from Kailianu Wailehua and wife to all portions will patronize the affair. Cassie A Drummond......
